

Helix Pharma UK Ltd - Statement of Work

1. Definitions and interpretation

In this Agreement, Business Day means a day other than Saturday, Sunday or a public holiday in the jurisdiction stated in clause 12. Customer Materials means information, specifications and content provided by the Customer for delivery of the Services. Confidential Information means information identified as confidential or which a reasonable commercial party would understand to be confidential, including service configurations, security controls, pricing and business plans. Deliverable means a document, configuration or other output expressly identified in an agreed statement of work. An Order is a written order executed by authorised representatives of both parties. Services means only the services described in clause 3 and the applicable Order.

References to clauses include schedules. Words in the singular include the plural. Headings assist navigation and do not affect interpretation. A reference to writing includes an electronic notice sent through the agreed contractual notice channel, but excludes an informal support ticket or chat message. An obligation not to do something includes an obligation not to permit it. Where a schedule conflicts with the body of this Agreement, the body prevails unless the schedule identifies the specific clause it overrides. Neither party may rely on a purchase order to vary these terms.

2. Contract particulars

Supplier: Helix Pharma UK Ltd.

Service category: Pharmaceuticals.

Contract currency: GBP.

Start date: 2026-03-12.

End date: 2027-03-12.

Initial term: 12 months.

The Customer is Meridian Demo Holdings Ltd, a fictional procurement entity. This statement of work incorporates the framework services agreement and defines the project deliverables for pharmaceuticals. The contract particulars form an integral part of the Agreement and may be changed only by a signed amendment. The initial term runs from the Start date to the End date. All amounts exclude applicable taxes. No real customer, employee or organisation is represented by this document.

3. Services and delivery

The Supplier shall provide the Services with reasonable skill and care, using personnel with appropriate experience and training. The Services include implementation planning, configuration of the agreed environment, access to the contracted functionality and ordinary operational support. The parties shall agree milestones and acceptance criteria in writing before work begins. A feature described in a sales presentation is not a Deliverable unless included in an Order. The Customer shall provide timely access to required systems, accurate inputs and a designated commercial contact. Delay caused by missing dependencies will extend the affected milestone by the period of delay, subject to reasonable mitigation by the Supplier.

The Supplier shall maintain a service management process, record material incidents and provide monthly service reports. Planned maintenance shall normally take place outside the Customer's ordinary operating hours and shall be notified at least five Business Days in advance. The Supplier shall not materially reduce the core functionality of the Services during the contracted term. The Customer may not resell the Services, circumvent access restrictions or use the environment to process information outside the agreed purpose. Additional work requires a signed change request specifying the deliverable, price and delivery impact.

4. Service levels and governance

The parties shall meet quarterly to review service performance, open risks, change requests and forthcoming commercial deadlines. The Supplier shall nominate a service owner and the Customer shall nominate an operational owner. Neither nomination grants authority to amend this Agreement. Material service incidents must be acknowledged within four support hours and given an initial action plan within one Business Day. Routine support requests shall be acknowledged within two Business Days. Support hours run from 09:00 to 17:00 on Business Days unless an Order provides additional coverage.

The target monthly availability of the hosted service is 99.5%, excluding notified maintenance and events outside the Supplier's reasonable control. If availability falls below target, the Supplier shall investigate and provide a written corrective action plan. A service credit, where expressly agreed in an Order, is calculated against the monthly subscription charge for the affected service only. It does not replace the Customer's right to terminate for persistent material breach under clause 8. The Customer must submit a credit claim within thirty days after the relevant monthly report. No credit may be applied twice for the same incident.

5. Charges and payment

Annual contract value: GBP 160000.

Payment terms: Net 30 days from receipt of a valid invoice.

Subscription charges are invoiced quarterly in advance. Implementation charges, if any, require separate written agreement. The annual value is the agreed annualised commercial amount and is not an estimate of foreign exchange conversion. The Customer shall pay undisputed invoices to the account specified through the approved payment process. A disputed amount must be notified within fifteen Business Days, identifying the reason and supporting records. The parties shall resolve the dispute promptly while the Customer pays the undisputed balance.

The Supplier may not increase charges during the initial term. A proposed renewal price must be notified before the non-renewal deadline, with sufficient information to permit a commercial decision. An unnotified price increase has no effect. Expenses require advance written approval and valid receipts. Neither party may offset a disputed claim against an undisputed invoice without written agreement. The Supplier may suspend service for material non-payment only after written notice and a further fifteen Business Days to cure, and shall avoid suspending critical data export functionality.

6. Confidentiality and publicity

Each party shall keep the other party's Confidential Information secure and use it only to perform or receive the Services. Disclosure is permitted only to personnel, professional advisers and permitted subcontractors who need to know and are subject to obligations no less protective than this clause. A party may disclose information required by law or a competent authority, provided that it gives advance notice where lawful and limits disclosure to what is required. Information is not confidential to the extent the receiving party can demonstrate that it was lawfully known, publicly available without breach, independently developed or received lawfully from a third party.

The Supplier shall not publish the Customer's name, logo or a case study without prior written consent for the specific publication. Consent may be withdrawn prospectively on reasonable notice. Confidentiality obligations survive for three years after expiry, and for as long as trade secrets remain trade secrets. On request after termination, a party shall return or securely destroy Confidential Information, except records retained under law, professional standards or ordinary backup cycles. Retained records remain subject to this clause and may not be used for any other purpose.

7. Intellectual property

Each party retains ownership of intellectual property existing before this Agreement or developed independently of it. The Supplier grants the Customer a non-exclusive right to use the hosted service and associated documentation during the term for the Customer's internal business purposes. No source code is transferred. On payment of the applicable charges, the Customer may use project Deliverables internally on a perpetual basis, except Supplier tools, templates and reusable components, which remain licensed only as needed to use the Deliverables. The Supplier may use general knowledge and skills acquired in performing the Services but may not disclose Customer Confidential Information.

The Customer warrants that it has the right to supply Customer Materials and grant the permissions needed to perform the Services. The Supplier shall notify the Customer promptly of a third-party intellectual property claim affecting the Services. Subject to the agreed liability provisions, the Supplier may modify the affected functionality, procure a continued licence or replace it with materially equivalent functionality. The Customer shall provide reasonable assistance and shall not admit liability or settle a claim without the defending party's prior written consent. No licence is granted by implication beyond the express rights in this clause.

8. Term and termination

Notice period: 30 calendar days before the End date.

Auto-renewal: No. This Agreement expires on the End date without automatic extension.

Termination for convenience: Yes. The Customer may terminate this SOW for convenience on 30 days written notice.

Expiry requires no notice to prevent automatic renewal. The notice period applies to an agreed early exit right or transition planning; it does not create an automatic extension. Either party may terminate for a material breach not remedied within thirty days after written notice specifying the breach. Either party may terminate immediately upon the other party entering insolvency, subject to mandatory legal restrictions.

Termination does not affect rights accrued before its effective date. The Customer shall pay charges for Services properly delivered up to that date. Prepaid amounts relating to undelivered Services shall be refunded where termination results from the Supplier's uncured material breach. Clauses dealing with confidentiality, intellectual property, liability, accrued payment obligations and dispute resolution survive to the extent needed to give them effect. No termination or non-renewal notice is implied by a request for a quotation from an alternative supplier.

9. Liability and indemnities

Customer liability cap: £500,000.

Supplier liability cap: £500,000.

The caps apply in aggregate to claims arising in each contract year, subject to the mandatory exclusions below. A fee-based cap means the fees paid or payable for the stated number of months immediately preceding the event giving rise to the claim. Neither party excludes liability for death or personal injury caused by negligence, fraud or any liability which cannot lawfully be excluded.

Neither party is liable for indirect or consequential loss, or for loss of anticipated profit, except where such loss forms part of an expressly covered third-party indemnity. A party seeking an indemnity shall promptly notify the claim, allow the indemnifying party to control the defence and provide reasonable assistance. No settlement may impose a non-monetary obligation or admission on the protected party without its written consent. The parties shall take reasonable steps to mitigate loss. These provisions allocate commercial risk and do not reduce either party's obligation to perform its express duties.

10. Data protection and security

Data processing addendum: Yes. Schedule 1 is incorporated as the data processing addendum.

The Customer acts as controller and the Supplier as processor of personal data described in Schedule 1. Processing is limited to documented instructions necessary to deliver the Services. The Supplier shall ensure confidentiality, apply proportionate technical and organisational measures, maintain a record of subprocessors and notify the Customer of a suspected personal data breach without undue delay. Subprocessor changes require advance notice and a reasonable opportunity to object on substantiated data protection grounds. International transfers require a lawful transfer mechanism before processing begins.

The Supplier shall restrict access by role, maintain access logs for privileged actions, review access periodically and use encryption in transit. Security controls must be proportionate to the agreed data categories. The Customer may request current independent assurance reports and a remediation plan for material findings. Audits shall be scheduled on reasonable notice, protect other customers' information and avoid unnecessary disruption. A request does not grant unrestricted access to the Supplier's systems or premises. Security obligations continue for so long as the Supplier retains Customer information.

11. Business continuity and exit assistance

The Supplier shall maintain proportionate business continuity arrangements and test recovery procedures at least annually. Recovery testing must include restoration of a representative backup and review of dependency risks. The Supplier shall notify the Customer without undue delay when a material continuity event threatens delivery of the Services. Subcontracting does not relieve the Supplier of its contractual responsibilities. A material subcontractor with access to Customer information must be subject to suitable confidentiality and security controls.

For thirty days after expiry or termination, the Supplier shall make Customer data available for export in a commonly used machine-readable format, subject to payment of undisputed charges. Exit assistance beyond ordinary export is charged at the rates agreed in an Order and requires a written transition plan. The plan shall identify responsibilities, access arrangements, milestones and the date for final deletion. The Supplier shall not withhold data export solely because the Customer disputes an unrelated invoice in good faith. Deletion from active systems shall occur within sixty days after the export period; residual backups shall expire through the documented retention cycle.

12. Governing law and disputes

Governing law: England and Wales.

The courts of England and Wales have exclusive jurisdiction, subject to either party seeking urgent interim relief in a competent court. Before commencing ordinary proceedings, the parties shall refer the dispute to senior commercial representatives for a good-faith meeting within fifteen Business Days. If unresolved after thirty days, either party may commence proceedings. This escalation process does not suspend contractual notice deadlines, payment of undisputed amounts or either party's right to preserve a claim before a limitation period expires. The parties may agree mediation but neither party is required to accept a proposed settlement.

13. Notices and general provisions

A contractual notice must identify this Agreement, state the action required and be delivered to the designated notice contact specified in the relevant Order. A renewal or termination notice is effective only when receipt is acknowledged or delivery can be evidenced. The sending party is responsible for retaining evidence of delivery. Ordinary support correspondence does not constitute a notice of non-renewal. A notice received outside Business Hours is treated as received on the next Business Day.

Neither party may assign this Agreement without the other party's prior written consent, except to a successor acquiring substantially all of its relevant business, provided service continuity and existing protections are preserved. No failure or delay in exercising a right waives that right. If a provision is unenforceable, the remaining provisions continue and the parties shall agree a lawful replacement reflecting the commercial intent. This Agreement and the applicable Orders form the entire agreement for the Services. Variations must be in writing and signed by authorised representatives. Each party acts as an independent contractor; nothing creates a partnership or agency.

Schedule 1. Data processing particulars

The processing purpose is delivery, support and secure operation of the contracted Services. The duration is the term of the Agreement plus the agreed exit and deletion period. Data subjects are fictional business users and fictional customer contacts in the demonstration environment. Permitted categories are account identifiers, business contact information and service usage records. Special-category data is excluded unless expressly agreed. The Supplier shall assist with reasonable data subject requests and impact assessments, taking account of the nature of processing and available information. At expiry, data shall be returned or deleted at the Customer's election under clause 11. All data in this document is synthetic.